

Prof Dr Mahmood Adil

DCH, CerHEcon, DipHInformatcs, MHSM, FRCP(Edin), FFPH, Dip IoD

Medical Director @ NHS National Services Scotland

He has 25 years of medical, public health and executive management experience in the NHS (UK) and USA. His current remit, as a Medical Director in the NHS National Services Scotland, is to oversee the health data/intelligence and health protection functions of Scotland. He provides leadership to improve quality and efficiency in all the hospitals, with help of comprehensive data assets in the country. Prior to joining Scotland, he was the National Quality and Efficiency Advisor at the Department of Health (England). He has a demonstrable track record of comprehensively measuring and regulating the performance of healthcare organisations and improving cost, quality and safety at a national and international levels. He is an expert adviser to a number of countries globally, including Turkey.

He is also Professor of Health Intelligence & Service Effectiveness at University of Glasgow. He has been World Bank advisor, visiting professor at the Manchester Business School and fellow of NHS Institute of Innovation & Improvement. He is an alumni of the Harvard Kennedy School, Institute of Healthcare Improvement (USA), Yale School of Public Health and European Hospital & Healthcare Federation. He has postgraduate qualifications in medicine, paediatrics, public health, economics, management, health informatics fields and professionally qualified board director from the Institute of Directors (UK).